List authors in order of contributions (see APA for authorship order) and without credentials. Use superscripts to label each author with their corresponding institution.

Less is more: Use no more than 2 fonts and 2-3 colors (e.g., a light-colored background with black or dark-colored text). Make sure that the color contrast does not make the information difficult to read (e.g., yellow on white). Remember that red/green colorblindness is common, so take this into consideration when selecting your color scheme.

Introduction (Font 52)

- Use short phrases to summarize information (Font 32 for body)
 - Introduce the specific problem the study seeks to address
 - Briefly state prior research in the area and provide a few key references, see below.
 - In text citations of more than two authors (Kazemi et al., 2017)
 - In text citation of two authors (Kazemi & Shapiro, 2017)
 - Kazemi et al., (2017) found.....
 - Kazemi and Shapiro (2017) found.....
- Purpose: State the main objective of your study
- State research question(s) and hypothesis
 - The DV and how you manipulated the IV in your research.

Results

- Data analyses and outcomes you obtained
 - Summarize the data and the analysis performed
- Table/Graph formatting and style
 - Provide your findings in easy-to-read table(s) or concise bullets
 - Color coordinate relevant data across graphs and tables (i.e. see Figure 1 and Table 1).

Discussion

- Summarize findings: 2-4 main points
- List limitations (Optional)
 - This can be done as bulleted sub-points
- Implications and Future Research
 - Mention how can the findings help others (e.g., practitioners, educators, policy makers)?
 - Based on the results and/or limitations of this study, what should future researchers in this area consider or do? Where can they go from here?

Maintain consistency with bullet and sub bullet markers

Provide at least 0.25" space between pictures and words

Method

Sample Characteristics (Font 36)

Demographics (e.g. sample size, gender, age range and mean, ethnicity, etc.)
Any other characteristics that may be relevant to the study.

Procedures

How was the data collected?
(e.g. search engine/database, search criteria/keywords, inclusionary criteria used, etc.)
For empirical studies provide description of procedures used to conduct the investigation

Variables and Measurement

How were the variables operationally defined?
List variable, scale, number of items, response choices, and reliability.

Label graphs. Be sure to include labels for X & Y axes and provide legends when applicable

Use flow charts, images or colored graphs to display information.

The font size for charts is 24-36. Avoid long numeric tables.
